Poem of the Week:

The Museum

By Jack Prelutsky

I went to the museum,
It was filled with things to see.
There were rocks and gems and fossils
And a stuffed menagerie.
There were arrowheads and armor
And a mummy in a tomb.
I even saw a great blue whale
That took up one whole room.
I liked my afternoon there,
But I would have liked it more
If only they had let me pet
Just one small dinosaur.
